LOCKDOWN HEALTH & SAFETY

With the uncertainty of a return to work date for salons, it can be worrying and staying positive and connected is important.

YOUR TIME IN LOCKDOWN

by Karen Clark

Like everyone else, we have all been following the latest numbers daily and seeing them grow and flatten and even more positive to see a reduction in numbers in recent days. I am confident with the hard work and vigilance of Kiwi's we will be back to elimination again soon. It has been heart warming to hear the stories nail technicians have shared and the kindness and support received from family and clients, so thank you for sharing.

We feel for those that have COVID-19 and their friends and families that are unable to be close to them, My Dad is in Sydney and I worry about him every day.

Keep communicating with friends and family through these stressful times. I know you will all have applied for the wage subsidy as well as the resurgence support payment available through MyIR. Some have applied for part time jobs to get by and it is good to keep the body as well as the mind active. Most of all, try to keep your inner voice positive and keep working and striving towards positive outcomes. I have heard so many positive stories during times of lockdown of awesome craft projects being completed, fitness increased using on-line apps with free sessions being offered, renovations at home, or even reading that book you never quite got to.

And like me, you will have taken this opportunity to play with those products you weren't 100% sure on and get in some practice. We always continue to learn and grow and challenging ourselves is great as well. I was excited to see the Nailympia competition has now opened for entries as well, so head on to the website and check it out!

PERFECT A NEW SKILL IN LOCKDOWN

Taking up a new application can be difficult and take a lot of time to practice and perfect. And there are so many different types of nail products available on the market these days. From acrylic, gel polish, hard gel, acrylicgel, cyanoacrylate and gel dipping systems to silk and fibreglass nail overlays and nail art. Lockdown can be the perfect time to sift through training videos on line and get new ideas and techniques to practice on yourself (and dare I say partners). And when we are back to Level 2, our clients will love seeing your new services.

Be sure to make sure that you cover your costs and to ensure that the systems you chose provide value to your clients as well as good income for you. Some applications are just not feasible for use in the salon. There are some great value art ideas out there and now is the time to play so have fun!
